Fort McMurray Hosts Senators

Welcome to Fort McMurray, the stewardess intones and several dozen pairs of eyes gaze out the windows at a considerable stretch of open field flanked by dense stands of trees. The University of Alberta Senate has touched down for the purpose of conducting its first meeting of 1980-81 and any feelings of solitude evaporate quickly as buses whisk the anticipatory group to the Syncrude Plant or, more properly, The Syncrude Plant. Some 100,000 barrels of synthetic crude oil are produced here daily with the aid of four of the world's largest draglines and the world's largest upgrading stack. The entire operation is on a grand scale, such that it costs $1 million each day to keep things running smoothly. It's an eye-filling sight, especially for first-time visitors as many of the Senators are. The tour as well as a seminar which acquainted Senate with the issues and concerns faced by Fort McMurray and Northeast Alberta; a reception and banquet; and the two-month loan to Keyano College of a handsome display on the life and work of Karl Clark, The University of Alberta scientist who gave impetus to the whole tar sands development, combine to make a resilient springboard to the Senate's public meeting on 27 September at the College.

Vic Henning, Commissioner, Northeast Alberta Regional Commission, predicted at the workshop that Fort McMurray would develop a thirst for more evening classes and extension classes and that the University would have to be increasingly conscious of educational upgrading programs in northern communities. His remarks were to provide a recurring theme for the following day's meeting. Before reaching the kernel of the meeting, that is, the presentation of briefs by Fort McMurray residents, the Senate was reminded of a noteworthy fact by Chancellor Forest, namely that there is not now nor has there ever been a Senate member from Fort McMurray. And speaking of Senate members, Barbara Bromley of Yellowknife was nominated as a replacement for Ron Hawkes who has been transferred to Australia by his company. Mrs. Bromley is a graduate of The University of Alberta and has been active in public health nursing.

The Senate's Honorary Degrees Committee announced that Hugh Bancroft, former Organist and Choirmaster at All Saints' Anglican Cathedral in Edmonton, and Lisbeth Hockey, Director of the Nursing Research Unit at the University of Edinburgh, will be conferred Honorary Doctor of Laws degrees at Fall Convocation. The event will take place on 22 November.

Mary Lobay, a member of the University's 75th Anniversary Committee, outlined the terrain covered by that body. The anniversary will be celebrated between July 1982 and June 1983 and, as described by Mrs. Lobay, the University will do a fine imitation of a cornucopia. The committee's planning includes the installation of the new Chancellor, the final report of the Senate Commission on University Purpose, the unveiling of a work of art, museum displays (possibly an array of Egyptian artifacts from the University of Manchester), sports events, jazz concerts, a symposium on human evolution, a winter carnival, a symposium on international affairs, and the publication of various books including former University President Walter Johns' History of The University of Alberta. The committee would also like to see the erection of a performing arts and collections building, one that would stand as a permanent reminder of the 75th Anniversary.

The lineup of briefs was prefaced by a statement by Grant Howell, Syncrude's Employee Development Supervisor, to the effect that the University can play a role in providing broader educational opportunities to all citizens in Fort McMurray, including Syncrude employees. In particular, he called for the provision of graduate degree opportunities for the "significant population of professionals resident here." (Syncrude employs more than 3,300 people in Fort McMurray, 900 of which are in the administrative, professional, and technical group.) The graduate courses sought are in business (an MBA program) and in engineering (computer control, geo-technical engineering programs).

Syncrude has an education leave policy but the consortium can only afford to have a certain number of people away for an extended period of time at The University of Alberta. Timetabling difficulties would have to be overcome too because Syncrude employees work twelve-hour shifts.

Peter Hunt, Branch Chairman of the Association of Professional Engineers, Geologists and Geophysicists of Alberta, said there will be a substantial increase in the number of engineers needed in the Fort McMurray area. "At the same time, there will be intense competition from within the province. As well, much close scrutiny of the qualifications of these engineers will be taking place. In other words, a need for a facility to provide graduate level courses in engineering is fast becoming apparent."

Mr. Hunt recommended that the University consider establishing a separate branch, a regional university in Fort McMurray in the near future and that the University conduct a poll of the people of Fort McMurray to determine the need and priority for these facilities. He also emphasized that "immediate thought be given to the present engineering dilemma of lack of graduate level courses."

The Alberta Teachers' Association, Fort McMurray Local Number 48, expressed concern about an off-campus MEd program and about course offerings by the Faculties of Arts, Science, and Business Administration and Commerce and offerings of first-year courses in all Faculties.

The local suggested that the University offer courses during week nights in addition to those offered on weekends, reduce the minimum enrolment requirement of fifteen people for a trial period, offer a variety of disciplinary and interdisciplinary courses at all levels in all Faculties, and investigate the possibility of cooperation from an existing local library in providing a university reserved reference section.

"Without the availability of a junior college locally, the people of this city would appreciate an increased awareness of their needs by The University of Alberta to expand their course offerings here," the local stated. The point was then made by Vice-President (Academic) Baldwin that the University has had approved the capability of offering the MEd program off campus but that the matter is still up in the air.

Ted Walter, a member of the administration of Keyano College in Fort McMurray, said the College, through its Continuing Education Division, is aware of "a tremendous interest in all forms of education." University transfer courses, he said, would be very useful because many of the young people in Fort McMurray are not going to university because it requires leaving home, just at a time when they have begun to feel at home in this town. Mr. Walter said another reason might be the high cost of going away to university to see if they would like it. "At any rate, while many young people express interest in professional careers in their high school counselling sessions, they are choosing to seek unskilled jobs rather than leaving to go to university."

A 1978 study showed that about ninety-seven percent of Fort McMurray's population was under forty years of age. The population now stands at 28,000, making Fort McMurray the fifth largest community in Alberta. It is, incidentally, expected to become the third largest by the year 2000.

Keyano (a Cree word meaning "belonging to everyone") College plans to meet with Amy Zelmer, Associate Vice-President (Academic) of the University, on transfer arrangements and then pursue a course by course transfer set up with individual Faculties. What is envisaged is a core of some twenty courses that would have broad application as first and second-year requisites to a range of degree programs as well as courses from the College's two-year business administration diploma program for advanced standing credits. Special courses transferrable to the Faculty of Nursing may also be requested.

Fort McMurray nurses told the Senate of their disappointment over the choosing of Red Deer as the site for the first off-campus Post-RN program toward a BSc in Nursing in the University's Faculty of Nursing. Their feelings were assuaged by Dr. Baldwin who said that Fort McMurray has been identified as the next site for expansion although special funding has not yet been allocated by the provincial government.

Copies of the various briefs presented will be forwarded by the Senate to the appropriate authorities of The University of Alberta and the Government of Alberta. The briefs and the manner in which they were read brought home the fact that the people of Fort McMurray, a new city situated "at the confluence of the federal and provincial governments", possess a keen interest in the learning process. That, coupled with hard work, should serve to enhance the education scene. □

Associate Vice-President Appointed

The University of Alberta has appointed Alan M. Rennie to the new position of Associate Vice-President (Facilities and Services). The appointment became official 23 September 1980.

First appointed ten years ago as an Administrative Professional Officer, Mr. Rennie served as Administrative Officer in the Department of Physical Plant until January 1976, at which time he was appointed Director of Administrative Services in the Office of the Vice-President (Planning and Development).

Mr. Rennie, now 51, received his early schooling and training in accountancy in England. He served two years in the Royal Air Force and after articling with a firm of chartered accountants served as an Internal Auditor. In Edmonton, Mr. Rennie previously worked in the automotive, lumber, oil and transportation industries. While working at the University he has completed the Management Development Certificate Program in the Faculty of Extension, attended an "Institute on Coordinating the Planning Process" at Princeton University and last year attended the two-week Senior

Administrator's Course at the University of Western Ontario. From 1977 to 1980 he was APO representative on the AASUA Council with two years on the executive as Treasurer. □

General Faculties Council

The first meeting of GFC during the winter session took place on Monday, 29 September, in the Council Chamber of University Hall. The new business conducted at that meeting included the reception of the final report of the Ad Hoc Committee on Study Space, approval for a revised Code of Student Behavior and proposed revisions concerning the role of selection committees for departmental Chairmen, and reception of the 1979-80 Annual Report of the GFC Conference Funds Committee. In addition, at the beginning of the meeting, several new members of GFC were appointed.

The new members appointed are: 1) undergraduate and graduate students Ludger Mogge (GS History), Peter MacDonald (GS Biochemistry), Jean Garipey (GS Biochemistry), Aurelia Mauro (Arts 4), and Sue Wright (Rehabilitation Medicine); 2) Non-Academic Staff Association Pat Brunel (Philosophy) and Mildred Richardson (Education Library); and 3) from the academic staff, R.C. Smith (Classics) and P.J. Cahill (Religious Studies).

Following the meeting, President Horowitz hosted a reception at the Faculty Club for members of GFC, to which observers present at the meeting were also invited. □

The Walterdale Theatre, 1980-81

Walterdale Theatre Associates were founded in 1959 and since that time have regularly provided ardent theatre-goers with intimate community theatre, first at the site of the present Kinsmen Fieldhouse and latterly in the converted No. 6 Fire Hall in the Strathcona district.

The new season will be no exception to the diversity of tastes in drama for which the Walterdale Theatre is well-known. The season opened on 7 October with George Walker's Zastrozzi, a play loosely based on Shelley's early romance of the same title. The first night was designated as a benefit night for another of Edmonton's theatrical enterprises, the Northern Light Theatre.

Zastrozzi will close on 18 October.

The next production, Ibsen's rarely played The Lady From the Sea, will run from 11 to 22 November. This will be followed by Christmas fare, The Valiant Little Tailor, a dramatization by Noreen Young of a folk-tale "Seven at One Blow." That play will run from 18 to 30 December.

In the new year, from 27 January to 7 February, a play by Brad Fraser will be featured and, from 10 to 21 March, there will be an opportunity to view Labiche's The Italian Straw Hat. These two productions will be followed, from 14 to 25 April, by Otis Bigelow's The Peacock Season, a humorous view of the "omniscient French detective."

Finally, the last play of the season will be the winner of Walterdale's Playwriting Contest in honor of the seventy-fifth anniversary of our province. Budding dramatists must make their submissions by 31 December 1980. The winner of the contest will receive, in addition to the production, a prize of $1,500, the money being made available from the City of Edmonton's anniversary fund.

For information concerning the Playwriting Contest, membership in the Walterdale Theatre Associates, and season tickets, please write to the Walterdale Theatre Associates, PO Box 1253, Edmonton. □

NSERC Awards

The President of the Natural Sciences and Engineering Research Council of Canada, G.M. MacNabb, has recently announced the award of 100 University Research Fellowships. The successful candidates were culled from some 350 candidates for the fellowships nominated by universities across the country.

The awards are quite valuable, giving their recipients up to $23,000 per year in addition to an annual research grant of up to $10,000. The recipients, therefore, will be able to spend most of their time (up to five years) engaging in research. The new program of University Fellowships is an element in the NSERC "five-year" plan designed to enhance career prospects for promising researchers and thereby to increase Canada's pool of "highly qualified manpower." All the recipients of the awards hold doctoral degrees in the natural sciences or engineering. Also, they possess the qualifications and experience equivalent to that normally required of those appointed at the assistant professorial level in a Canadian university.

The program of University Research Fellowships now instituted will have many benefits, not the least significant being represented in the fact that seventeen of the new Fellows are people who had gone abroad to seek employment. Mr. MacNabb, the President of NSERC, expressed his pleasure in that these people have returned to Canada.

The deadline date for the second competition for NSERC University Research Fellowships is 1 November 1980. For information concerning the nomination procedures, please write to the Natural Sciences and Engineering Research Council, Ottawa, Ontario K1A 0R6, or telephone Louis I. Pinaud, Associate Scholarships Officer (613-993-2454). □

Employment of Foreign Workers Effective immediately, Eva Cherniavsky, Administrative Officer (Academic Administration) will act as Coordinator on behalf of the Associate Vice-President for all applications for employment authorization of foreign workers, both academic and non-academic.

 Mrs. Cherniavsky will perform liaison with the local Employment and Immigration Section, and will act as a resource person to all staff on matters concerning admission to Canada of a foreign worker, whether part-time, full-time, permanent, or temporary. In this connection, it should be noted that even Visiting Speakers or Lecturers from abroad require "employment authorization," and it is important that they be advised of the correct procedures so as to avoid difficulties at ports of entry. Since valuable processing time can be saved by applying appropriate procedures from the beginning, or by using accurate terminology when sending an employment offer to a prospective foreign worker, all staff are encouraged to contact Mrs. Cherniavsky as soon as they plan employing a foreign worker.
 Mrs. Cherniavsky will distribute Confirmation of Offer of Employment forms required for foreign workers, which should be returned to her directly upon completion by the prospective employer.
 If you plan to hire a foreign worker, or you have any queries in that regard, please contact Eva Cherniavsky at extension 4588, mailing address: 3-27 University Hall.
 All student authorization applications or student immigration concerns continue to be dealt with through the International Student Advisor, Ruth Groberman.
